Collaborating for Impact

The 2022 Tenth Annual Humanistic Management Conference will take place online on the 24th of November 2022.

The theme of this year's conference is Collaborating for Impact, and we want to look at different dimensions of this theme during our one-day long conference. From the big systemic questions that stem from the United Nations' Sustainable development Goal 17 – Partnerships for the Goals all the way to the individual question of the relationship between humanistic leadership and collaborative attitudes we are looking forward to spending an exciting and stimulation day with our speakers and, most importantly, with you!

Come join us at the 2022 Tenth Annual Humanistic Management Conference – together we make impact towards a more sustainable and more equitable planet.

On behalf of everyone at the HMN we look forward to welcoming you

SDG 17: Partnerships for the Goals

UN Sustainable Development Goal (SDG 17) highlights the need for innovative cross-border, cross-sectoral partnerships in realizing the SDGs effectively. Services play an important role in any economy. The collaboration can be key to improvement in services not only in terms of reducing cost or improving quality but also to create innovation for improving the reach, access and relevance to the different target groups. This year, the India country session of HMN Annual Conference focuses on how service planning and delivery can be improved through collaboration. More specifically, the session aims to answer a set a central questions on this theme.

Humanistic Leadership 1.0

This session revisits traditional performance management and juxtaposes it with an emerging philosophy of humanistic management. What to focus on as a humanistic leader? How to respect human dignity and individuality? How to help leaders and their team members thrive more naturally? The overarching goal of doing business in the Islamic world can be captured best with the concept of falah - a wellbeing-oriented way of doing business and latest insight in leadership research and development render the discussions more concrete. By the end of this session, leaders and followers will have had an opportunity to explore one approach to acknowledge the importance of humanism in business and walk the talk. This is crucial when leading and running businesses more humanistically, but also when we optimize collaborations for impact.

The Final Countdown: Collaboration for Impact in Management Education

What should management and organization studies look like when aspiring to create managers capable of collaborating for impact in the face of the challenges of the Anthropocene, especially climate-ecological crisis? Should we leave disciplinary boundaries and head to Impact and Organization Studies Instead of MBAs? What aspects of new managerial education should be crucial? Is it possible to leave “business as usual” without shutting down the business schools? Join the discussion!
